FLOWERY BRANCH, Ga. – Atlanta Falcons quarterback Matt Ryan will play on Oct. 27 when he lines up in the same uniform he wore during the first game of the 2012 season. Ryan, who missed the entire 2012 campaign after undergoing hip surgery, will travel to Washington to face the Redskins, whose defensive scheme he throws the ball and was familiar with when he wore a Falcons uniform in 2012. The Redskins are the only team in the league with a league-best 23 interceptions and Ryan has thrown for 12 touchdowns against them. He threw for 10 touchdowns against them last season. He said today at his weekly press conference that he didn't know what to make of that when he heard about it this summer. "We didn't know they were going to be in the same system," Ryan said. "But yeah, we'll see. I don't know if it makes it better or worse." Three years ago, Ryan threw for 33 touchdowns against a Redskins defense that only had 19 interceptions. He completed 16 passes to only seven touchdowns. He didn't throw a score in the Redskins' 16-10 victory last season. He was helped by three turnovers while he was helped by only one for the Redskins. The Redskins swept the season series last year with the Falcons. They had won the final three games in the series last year, including the playoff game. Ryan has thrown for 13 total touchdowns against the Redskins. Last season, he had 12 scores. He had 10 interceptions against them as well. He did throw for two touchdowns as the Falcons played against the Redskins last season, but he actually threw for two in Week 2 before the Redskins took the lead. “Last year was a tough game,” Ryan said. “It’s a tough matchup. Last year’s a little bit different because we knew a lot about that defense from the time last year. But I think we’re going to do the same things we’ve been doing and see how it goes.” Ryan said what’s different now than a year ago is that he won’t be attempting to stay off the turf. Last season, he didn’t play the entire game in either of the Falcons’ two games against the Redskins. “I’ll be playing all of
